Authorship and License Disclaimer

Participants of a Write Workshop will produce a four-page brief, based on a publication/study already produced and published and, in the case of participants representing a regional network, based on other documentation produced on regional research priorities.

In order to produce the four-page brief, you may need to have the consent of the publisher, or the authors of the original document, to avoid any authorship and copyright infringements that it may cause. If you need such consent, please send any written consent you receive from authors and publishers to c.sette@cgiar.org

The workshop organizers will credit you (the workshop participant) as the author of the four-page brief, unless otherwise indicated. The publisher will be the Global Forum for Agricultural Research (GFAR).

The brief layout will have a section to indicate publication collaborators (in case of more than one author or based on the intellectual property rights of several authors) and source (in case it is based on an existing publication). There may be space for logos, if appropriate, and if submitted to us in advance.

The four-page briefs will be made available in the public domain, free of charge, as per GFAR policy on producing intellectual public goods. GFAR will also distribute the briefs at the coming GCARD 2012.

GFAR will use the Creative Commons Attribution & Noncommercial License (BY-NC), which states that “licensees may copy, distribute, display and perform the work and make derivative works based on it only for noncommercial purposes and if they give the author or licensor the credits in the manner specified by these.”

If, for some reason, the authorship and copyright statement above is not accepted by you or your organization, please contact the organizers (c.sette@cgiar.org) as soon as possible.

Thank you

Workshop Organizers
Robin Bourgeois, Javier Ekboir and Cristina Sette